

The
Food and Land Use
Coalition

People's voices.

As custodians of more than 40 percent of the world's last remaining intact natural habitats, home to 80 percent of global biodiversity and storing 200 gigatonnes of carbon, Indigenous Peoples play a vital role in protecting forests and addressing the climate crisis. We must ensure their rights are protected.

Photo credit: Members of the Embera village of Chigorodó, Indigenous Reserves of Yaberaradó and Polines [Pueblo Embera de Chigorodó. Resguardos Indígenas de Yaberaradó y Polines] in Uraba, Colombia, are working to ensure forest conservation and sustain a living through traditional practices

The
Food and Land Use
Coalition

www.foodandlandusecoalition.org