

INSTRUCTIONS FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE - CREDITS REQUIRED

China/Ian Teh for Panos Pictures/Beijing Farmer's Market and God's Grace Garden

Please credit partners and teams:

World Resources Institute China, (Tsinghua University for Shared Harvest)

Please credit featured organisations and teams:

The Veggie Table, Shared Harvest, God's Grace Garden

Caption format:

Image Caption/Ian Teh for Panos Pictures/Food and Land Use Coalition

Files:*_A8A1983:

Veggie Table, a restaurant in the centre of Beijing, serves organic food to its customers from the Shared Harvest Farm, China.

Extra context:

[From farm to table]

_A8A9627;_A8A9602:

Fresh organic cherries from God's Grace Garden being sold at Beijing Farmer's Market, China.

_A8A9674:

Zhang You, from the Shared Harvest Farm, selling the farm's produce at Beijing Farmer's Market, China.

_A8A9721:

Jing Dong Hong is a farmer from Hebei, Beijing, China. She and her husband started their farm in 2010 due to their concerns of food safety for their children. They have recently started growing vegetables and grains aside from breeding livestock.

_A8A9844:

Left, Chen Li and right, Li Jian. They both work in a shop at Beijing's Farmer's Market, China.

_A8A0009:

INSTRUCTIONS FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE - CREDITS REQUIRED

Freshly plucked organic cherries from the Tianfu Garden Farm (God's Grace Garden), China.

_A8A0041;_A8A0054;_A8A0069;_A8A0235:

Chang Tianle runs the Beijing Farmer's Market and volunteers at the Tianfu Garden Farm (God's Grace Garden), China, where she helps pick ripe organic cherries.

_A8A0111:

Zhang Yingyi from the Beijing Farmers Market helps pick ripe organic cherries at the Tianfu Garden Farm (God's Grace Garden), China.

_A8A0139:

Freshly plucked organic cherries from the Tianfu Garden Farm (God's Grace Garden), China, plucked by volunteers.

_A8A0228;_A8A0245:

Teresa Zhang used to work in a high-profile job in international trade. Today, she volunteers at the Tianfu Garden Farm (God's Grace Garden), China, where she helps pick ripe organic cherries.

Extra context:

[Her health and devout faith in Christianity led her to start an organic farm on the outskirts of Beijing.]

_A8A9916:

Wang Rui from Beijing Farmer's Market, picking up ripe organic cherries at the Tianfu Garden Farm (God's Grace Garden), China.

---